Moving up a gear – the Angels tell us why they're back for more...

Natalie Cook (Cameron Diaz), Dylan Sanders (Drew Barrymore) and Alex Munday (Lucy Liu) reunite for a new adventure in Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle.

It's what we've all been waiting for – and now it's coming out for Christmas on DVD!

Using their expertise as masters of disguise, espionage and martial arts, they chase a former Angel (Demi Moore), who has stolen two rings containing important FBI information.

This sequel takes the action and comedy of the first film to a new level – and director McG was not prepared to do another one unless it was really good.

"It all starts with the writing, of course," says Barrymore. "In this film, we learn more about the Angels, delving deeper into their back story. We've also sharpened the comedy and notched up the action."

Diaz had her own doubts about making the sequel, but not for long.

"I never saw myself coming back to do a sequel," she says. "I like to work with different people, different directors, different stories. Then Drew called with a new twist on the storyline and said, 'let's do it again!' – and she doesn't stop until she gets what she wants."

In the end, it was difficult for Diaz and co to resist the offer, especially when they saw what daredevil stunts they would be getting up to this time around.

Diaz says: "I learned to weld, I surfed, I was in a roller derby, and I performed a number with this amazing group of beautiful, sexy dancers called the Pussycat Dolls."

The movie introduces us to Madison Lee (Moore) – a retired Angel. And, as soon as McG decided to include Madison in the script, Moore was the only actress he had in mind.

"Madison is not only beautiful, but physical as well," he tells us. "Happily, Demi took to that, and we developed the character even further from there."

Having established the three main characters in the original movie, and then moved them on, McG decided the action had to be notched up to an even higher level in Full Throttle.

"We all wanted to make this film decidedly more muscular and show that these girls can hang with the guys," he says. "We ramped it up to include wrestling, motocross, car crashes and leaps off tall buildings."

The daredevil Angels often insisted on doing their own stunts, so the crew brought in a Hong Kong fight choreographer to train them.

FILM FACT: Jaclyn Smith appears as her original TV Angel character Kelly Garrett

Demi packs a mean punch!

"Some of it was very challenging, because it's extremely intricate and has to be well timed," says Moore. "Learning the different sequences was very empowering and exciting."

It's been worth the wait for Full Throttle. As producer Leonard Goldberg says: "This is a movie that has glamour, sex appeal, dancing and great action all mixed together in one big confection."

DEADLY SERIOUS

FOLLOWING CYBORG ASSASSINS ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER AND ROBERT PATRICK WAS DAUNTING FOR NEWCOMER KRISTANNA LOKEN, BUT SHE'S TOUGH ENOUGH TO HANDLE THE FAME

It's been 12 years since Terminator saved the human race from the wrath of the machines - but we all knew it couldn't, and wouldn't, end there!

Finally, the long wait is over and Terminator 3: Rise of the Machines is available on DVD this Christmas.

Arnie returns to settle the score once and for all in the gripping third chapter of the sci-fi series. It's been the talk of Hollywood for months, with everyone eager to see Schwarzenegger return as one of cinema's most renowned sci-fi/action characters.

With the black leather jacket, the boots and the sunglasses, the Terminator has become an icon, so it's not surprising we all want to see more of him! And this time we see Arnie face Skynet's most sophisticated cyborg killing machine yet.

Out of the shadows of the future steps the T-X (Kristanna Loken). But who is she and where did she come from?

Loken, 24, is a model from Norway. We'll let Kristanna tell you the rest....

How did you come to get cast as T-X?

"I've always been a very physical person, and I did do a couple of other action things beforehand, including a TV show called Mortal Kombat. I felt that this was the right role for me because, as I was growing up, people liked me but they never quite knew how to cast me with my height and size and voice. The things that had worked against me in the past were working for me."

FILM FACT: Vin Diesel and Famke Janssen were said to be interested in the T-X role

Is it daunting to fight one of the screen's toughest heroes, Arnold Schwarzenegger?

"It's quite satisfying actually. At first, there was a little trepidation in thinking I was supposed to be stronger than one of the strongest men in movie history. But after you meet him, he becomes just another actor."

him, I kind of made a correlation with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers – I did everything Arnold did, but backwards and in heels!"

What preparation did you do for the role?

"I put on about 15 pounds of muscle mass, and I trained in Crav Maga, this Israeli form of martial arts that they teach the military. It's really kind of brutal street fighting, incorporating surroundings, maybe picking up the lamp and smashing it over the head, and an elbow and a head butt and a knee butt."

Did this physical work change you in any way?

"I did feel kind of invincible. In the whole period of making the film, I carried myself much more aggressively and was much more assertive than I normally would be."

Did you learn a lot from Arnold, the original Terminator?

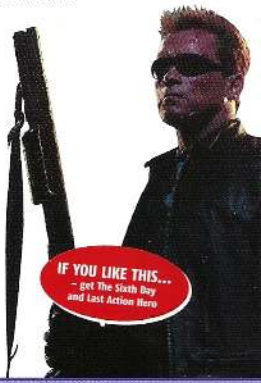
"Arnold is amazing. I was really impressed by his physicality. It's pretty phenomenal what he can do with his body. As far as doing the big fight scene with

Tell us about the new film.

"The actual storyline is really great. There's a lot of new stuff to look forward to, like my character, the new CG stuff that's come out in the last 12 years, Clare Danes' character, who has that sense of reality linking you to the real world, and Nick Stahl, who brings a great new energy to the film as an anti-hero. It turned out to be more humourous than I expected, but also very dark in other moments, very sad and very scary."

Did you know the previous Terminator films?

"I was really taken with Robert Patrick's performance as the T-1000 in T2. I ran into him at a film premiere film. I'm not normally star struck, but I was sweating when I met him, I was so excited. I had about a hundred questions. He didn't know I was playing the upgraded version of him until I told him. He gave me the once over and said, 'I can see why they cast you, you look right'."



Jack of all tirades

He's a little less angry with the world, but Nicholson's still spitting fire and brimstone on the big screen...

Jack has everything under control

If you're feeling stressed out, prescribe yourself two hours of Anger Management. Out on DVD this Christmas, this comic take on America's obsession with pop psychology was a massive box office hit. And, when you see the comic genius of Adam Sandler and Jack Nicholson come head to head, you'll be screaming out for more!

The role of anger management therapist Dr. Buddy Rydell was made for Jack Nicholson, who is renowned for the strong, brash and quirky characters he likes to play. He has become a giant of the cinema, winning three Oscars, the most memorable for his performance as a mental patient in One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest.

Here, he gives you a rare insight into what makes him tick – as an actor, as a patient undergoing therapy himself, and as a man...

"This movie proves that laughter really is the best medicine. So, if you're feeling stressed out, prescribe yourself two hours of Anger Management."
BBCi online

When have you really lost the plot?
"I'm more of a flash, angry person. But on the second movie I ever did, I went into a restaurant with my girlfriend and director Roger Corman. My girlfriend says to the waitress, 'I don't like the way the steak is cooked'. The waitress looked at the steak and said, 'Well, you know, you asked for this and that'. I just took the steak off the plate and threw it straight up in the air. And all I heard the director say was, 'Oh Jack'. That's the kind of anger, you know? The sweeping off type."

Your facial expressions in Anger Management are hysterical. Have you had your eyebrows insured?
"I can move them around at will, that's for sure. Some movies I deliberately move my eyebrows and scream and yell. But I've never insured them."

What attracted you to Anger Management?
"I was attracted to and interested in working with Adam. I thought it would be a kind of a very easy, free ride learning experience for me."

What impressions did you take from Sandler?
"Adam is a very, very sweet man to people. He's very smart and very sharp and strong. He won't be pushed where he doesn't want to be pushed. I took a lot from the way he worked."

Director Peter Segal said everyone was nervous on the first day of shooting because you were on set. What did you do to calm their nerves?
"I looked around at all the people so they knew I was there and I screamed at them! [Laughs] But I think people feel very comfortable with me within a minute or two of being around me."

Have you ever been in therapy yourself?
"My first official therapy was in the original groups that studied LSD."

What are you thinking going into therapy?
"I go there because I've got something therapy's going to help me with. And it pretty much has always worked for me. I was in therapy for a year-and-a-half fairly recently about a specific thing. The thing then disappeared."

Jack in the process of learning from Sandler!

FILM FACT: Sandler's name in the majority of his movies ends in an 'y' sound – Nicky, Bobby etc

In Britain, you're well known for your ability to have a good time. Have those wild days gone?
"I think I found out they had when I did The Shining. I mean I actually went there [Britain] and said 'all right, I'm going to show these people. I want to work with the toughest director in the world, Stanley Kubrick, and I'm going to burn London to the ground! Every night!' About eight weeks into the picture, I jumped over a wall in London and hurt my back and I was out for eight weeks. That was the beginning of, 'Hey, maybe I should pay attention to my job and not think about how wild I can be'. I think I'm a quieter man than I was 20 years ago."

What would you like to happen when you die?
"I'll look around and where I see people that are laughing, I'll say, 'I want to be over there with them!'"

Today, we'll discuss road rage...

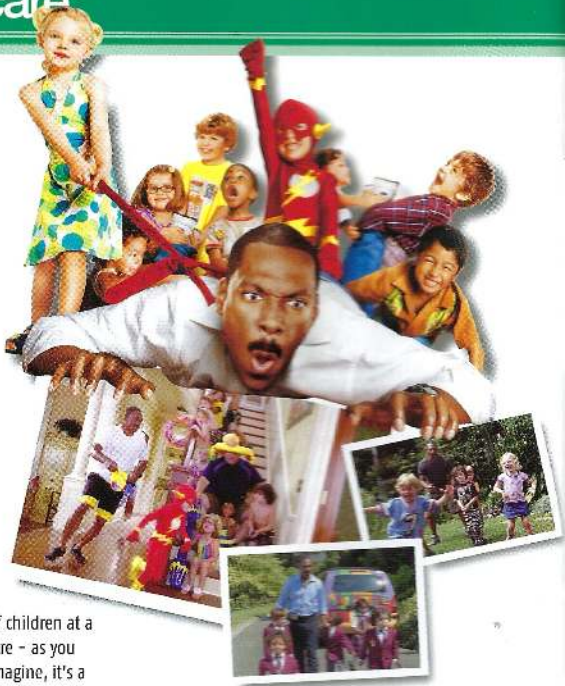
Pop idol

With five kids of his own, Murphy couldn't resist the challenge of playing Dad on the big screen...



Enjoy a family get-together this Christmas with Daddy Day Care. Out on DVD later this year, this hilarious comedy sees Eddie Murphy and Jeff Garlin in charge of a bunch of children at a day care centre - as you can imagine, it's a recipe for disaster!

Not only do the former businessmen employ some fairly unconventional and sidesplitting methods of caring for children, but they have to face the tough as nails director of a rival centre.

Ever since The Nutty Professor movies, we have been waiting to see more of Eddie Murphy.

They say you should never work with animals or children. Well, first Murphy worked with - and learned to talk to - the animals in the Doctor Dolittle films. So, Murphy seemed perfect for the role of Charlie in Daddy Day Care, and the father of five was happy to step right into the comedy role.

"Whenever you take some guys who aren't used to nurturing, and you see them go through that process of trying to be as good as a mom," says Murphy. "Humour just comes out of those situations naturally."

Director Steve Carr said Murphy was a natural when working with the four-year-old members of the cast.

"The Murphy household must be pretty funny, because Eddie was so clever with the kids, and so real," says Carr. "His own

EDDIE MURPHY

(real name Charlie Hinton) began his career as a stand-up comedian 25 years ago and moved successfully into acting with films like 48 Hours, Trading Places and the Beverly Hills Cop series.

In 1996, he portrayed seven characters in the box-office smash The Nutty Professor, followed by Nutty Professor II: The Klumps.

Upcoming for Murphy are the films Haunted Mansion for Disney, as well as the sequel to Shrek, in which he will again co-star with Mike Myers and Cameron Diaz.

FILM FACT: Murphy often plays multiple characters in one movie, such as The Nutty Professor existence seeped in and all the intimate moments that come from actually being a dad are in this film."

Murphy enjoyed laughs with the kids on and off set, but he did find his role as Dad different from the one he plays at home.

"If your own kids get too crazy, you can tell them to sit down and be quiet," he laughs. "But, on a set, you have to negotiate and say things like, 'We're on a bell'. There's a lot more negotiating than at home."

Playing the other half of the Daddy Day Care team is Jeff Garlin – and Garlin, the down-to-earth one, and Murphy, the manic one, were perfect together.

"Both Jeff and Eddie possess great comic timing," says Carr.

"On the set they were constantly bouncing things off one another. Jeff made the perfect sideman for Eddie. You could really believe they were friends and hung out together all the time."

"Hilarious. Go see it!"

Classic

Some films are timeless. They can be watched over and over, as fresh today as they were the first time they were screened. Here, we've selected four classic movies – action-packed, dramatic and romantic – which should be in every film fan's collection.

DAS BOOT

Certificate 15
Starring Jürgen Prochnow, Herbert Grönemeyer

An inside view of the claustrophobic world of a WWII German U-boat – there's boredom, filth and sheer terror, all portrayed with a gritty realism.

GANDHI

Certificate PG
Starring Ben Kingsley, Edward Fox

Ben Kingsley won an Oscar for his lead role in Richard Attenborough's epic, about the pacifist Indian leader.

MIDNIGHT EXPRESS

Certificate 18
Starring Randy Quaid, John Hurt

When Billy is imprisoned for smuggling drugs in Turkey, he endures a nightmare which appears to have no ending.

END OF THE AFFAIR

Certificate 15
Starring Deborah Kerr, Van Johnson

Set in wartime London, Maurice falls in love with his neighbour, Sarah, and they begin an illicit romance.

Sci-fi

Most people are fascinated by the future, and today's science fiction can become tomorrow's science fact. If you enjoy the thrill of strange new worlds, alien encounters and fantastic situations, the following four movies will certainly keep you entertained.

GATTACA

Certificate 15

Starring Ethan Hawke, Uma Thurman, Jude Law

Vincent is prevented from achieving his goal to travel in space because he is genetically imperfect – but one man is willing to break all the rules to help him.

FINAL FANTASY

Certificate PG

Starring Voices of Alex Baldwin, Steve Buscemi, James Woods

A gripping sci-fi in which an alien infestation inhabits a female doctor.

20 MILLION MILES TO EARTH

Certificate PG

Starring William Hopper, Frank Puglia

The first spaceship to visit Venus crashes in the sea and releases a terrifying alien.

THE 6TH DAY

SUPERBIT

The picture perfect way

See DVDs in a whole new light with Superbit™ technology

You've seen your favourite movie a million times on DVD and you're looking for something more. It's clear our Superbit™ collection is for you, as it brings new life to those familiar favourites.

DVD technology offers some of the best viewing around, but Superbit™ DVDs enable you to see more in your favourite movies scenes. The picture is crisper, with the highest display resolution possible. Even the background details are razor sharp.

Also, every piece of dialogue, every special effect, every note and every sound is as clear as it possibly can be, thanks to a choice of Dolby® Digital 5.1 or DTS sound quality through an advanced transfer system.

Superbit™ DVDs make space available for the increased video and audio quality by stripping out extra features such as featurettes and commentaries. The extra space enables the movies to be encoded at close to double the rate of a normal DVD.

So, enter a new dimension of movie viewing with Superbit™. For more information, go to www.cthe.co.uk/superbit tc
